Should you use Photoshop? It depends on your work and your goals. If you need to create and edit high-resolution images, then Photoshop will be the best software for you. If you are looking for simple photo editing and very basic tools to create images, then Photoshop Elements will work just fine. If you are looking for a professional experience, you might even need to upgrade from Photoshop Elements to Photoshop CC which is the most famous photo editing software. Adobe Photoshop Features Although Photoshop is intended for photographers, it is often used as a graphics editor for web designers, graphic designers and everyone else who needs to create quality images. The name of the software itself is somewhat misleading, although it does contain most of the features that a real professional photo editor would need to create professional-quality images. As with most of the Adobe software, the interface is clean and simple. The tools are organized into three main groups: tools for pre-visualization, tools for editing and tools for image creation and layers. The main editor window displays, in addition to the image, an area where you can add and edit layer masks. Below the main editor window, a full screen mode which displays at least three options: a mask, the original file, and the in-progress image. The image can also be displayed in an entirely separate window if you want to process it in a separate tab. The right side of the editor window contains buttons for adding new tools, to access the most recent used tools and for saving the image. On the bottom-left of the editor window, you can navigate through image layers and change their order, duplicate them, and delete them. When you click on an image layer (or the regular layer), the mask that covers the image will appear so that you can edit it with the brushes and adjustment tools available on the toolbars. The tools provided by Photoshop include: Pencil Brush Round Eraser Lasso Quick Selection Magic Wand Airbrush Smudge Shear Selective Color Invert Spot Healing Brush Despeckle Relief Blur Sharpen Smooth Refine Edge Gradient Overlay Blending modes Adjustment layers Mask (layers) a681f4349e

Q: Reusing UIView as UITextField subview I have a UITextField. I want to add a border around it. The idea is for the border to be a subview of the UITextField, so that it can be positioned independently of the field. I tried: border.layer.cornerRadius = 5.0 border.layer.borderWidth = 1.0 border.layer.borderColor = #colorLiteral(red: 1, green: 0, blue: 0, alpha: 1) self.contentView.addSubview(border) And got this: Nothing to see here I thought I would be able to reuse the view this way, but it appears not. I also tried: let border = UIView() border.layer.cornerRadius = 5.0 border.layer.borderWidth = 1.0 border.layer.borderColor = #colorLiteral(red: 1, green: 0, blue: 0, alpha: 1) self.contentView.addSubview(border) In that case, the textfield doesn't have a border, and even if I set the borderColor to white, I still don't see any white. How do I get this to work? A: Add the border view as a subview to the UITextField, and set the borders for the UITextField's border and the border view. UITextField *textField = [[UITextField alloc] initWithFrame:CGRectMake(0.0, 0.0, 200.0, 44.0)]; textField.borderStyle = UITextBorderStyleRoundedRect; textField.layer.cornerRadius = 5.0; textField.layer.borderWidth = 1.0; textField.layer.borderColor = textField.layer.borderColor.CGColor; UIView *textFieldView = [[UIView alloc] initWithFrame:CGRectMake(0.0, 0.0, 200.0, 44.0)]; textFieldView.backgroundColor = textField.textColor.CGColor; textField.frame = CGRectInset
