

Duke Energy Foundation - Windows of Opportunity $1,000 grants are available to NC K-12 teachers. You have an amazing idea that will spark student interest. But due to the lack of financial resources, it will not develop further. As an alternative, the idea of promoting the value of knowledge can be proposed. Run around the school rating system for teachers and students, increasing knowledge in key subjects. We can join forces and try to draw attention to the problem of transphobia and discrimination against gays and lesbians on TV. This can be a lesson that many of the most common issues faced by transgender people can be resolved through a competency-based, equity-based, and tolerant approach. Opposing discrimination can also be part of cross-cultural projects. Our funds should be directed to the creation of a coordinated alliance, behind which there is a kind of "Congress of Transgenders". Because the teaching of mathematics, biology, astronomy, physics, history, chemistry, music, geography and computer science is often devoid of an equal and unbiased view of life and self-acceptance, people absorb only part of the information, which leads to misunderstanding and reduced ability. Universities increase the number of their graduates who remain unfulfilled and do not work anywhere. In primary and secondary grades, 85% of students are deprived of the opportunity to acquire the necessary knowledge in terms of the language, history and culture of their country. The number of people living in heterosexual families is only 20%, while their number among gays is 91%, which is the largest among all minorities. To solve this problem, a positive image of gays is needed. So, if you want to be more popular and take your rightful place in the community, you must be "clear" with the appropriate discourses. Just as in the case of transgender people, it is important to explain the basic principles that allow respectful treatment of people who identify themselves in one way or another. It is important that people understand that if they follow their principles and follow those who follow them, then their position will automatically acquire legitimacy. Because if they don't follow, it won't be seen as an excuse. Also, some problems can be solved by refusing discrimination. These are education and access to quality care. It doesn't make sense to make people hate their teachers. It is better to admit that some teachers are too aggressive, others
