Developer's description: "Forget those stupid games for wasting your time! We come with a new concept of a real, fun, challenging game, which is not just for the newbies. ARKOS is a platform game that challenges your reflexes, which you have never experienced before. You are the only hero in an unknown world that is constantly changing. The only weapon you have is your wits. The various puzzles of the game are intertwined with the varied and striking graphics. Use the house and there are doors, doors, doors all over the house. During our crowdfunding campaign we have to overcome several obstacles. Therefore we decided to introduce a special reward for those who make a contribution towards the completion of the game. Your support will make the game even more fun, beautiful and complete. Your contribution will greatly improve the game. We hope you will support our idea and we hope to be the one who will get you the message." Let's get to know each of our heroes in more detail. What's your name? I am Kujdan, my name is simply a Slavic language name. Everyone is allowed to call me whatever they want. What's your first language? I speak English. Do you come from the jungle? Not from the jungle, I come from a small town on the river I was born. The mountains are really beautiful. Have you ever been on an airplane? Yes, I have. I go to my school and my family is near my house. I go to school in the morning and I come back home at night. What's the name of your village? It's just "my village". What are you doing right now? I'm sleeping and I'm having nightmares. When does your day begin?

Holy shit, this game is hard. There's the issue of the AI simply not helping out with the team at all. For the story mode, you're actually only allowed /allowed/ to play one class. I haven't played the game for awhile, but I have almost no memory of it. As for the game itself, I love how the controls are really simple, and the more hardcore play is fine with the game. Bashing one enemy with the trusty royal will punish that enemy, effectively. If I'm exploring, I'll use the royal to bash through blocks, and then I'll just jump up on my quicksave points and whip that bad boy around like a slingshot. I love that in games. That's the thing too, is that the controls are simple, but that also means that it works great for casual play. One player / party can take on a multiplayer, and the controller is simple to use. I do want to talk about an item though, that I think is absolutely amazing. Wither. Wither. This is the one of the coolest and simplest items in any game I've used. It automatically replaces the enemy on your screen with a Wither (a cute little skeleton), and then it immediately replaces with an enemy that is much, much easier. This can really be used to easy level, or even just to test your skill. Where they drop the Wither is random, so you know you're not going to get a boss, but it's a good test. Anyway, that's the game. I just want to say that this is a really great game, despite the issues I had. The controls are really simple, which makes it a great pick up and play, and for those who have been playing games for awhile, there's the additional challenge of this game. Anyway, I hope you enjoy!

Now it's your turn to investigate. You break wind in the woods. It's always been here. But that's the past now. It's the present you want. Sometimes when you fall asleep in the cabin in the woods, you can hear big old animals out there. Yes. We passed the woods, but we didn't see them. You don't want to see them. Pass the logs, pass the fence, over the ridge. Pass the fruit trees. For five miles you pass the fruit trees, for five miles you pass the abandoned barns. But where do you want to go, anyway? You want an answer. See what you find. Look into it. Stop and look twice. You walk back, the pass is better now, not so steep. Your shirt is flapping in the wind, your lightweight sneakers, your jeans, your underwear and socks are all flapping in the wind. You can smell the forest. After six miles you find a dead body in the woods, they found him in the early spring. He found it, too. You want to see him. You want to be the one who finds him. You count the days until you can find this place, and who will find him first. It was posted, but no one did. You want this. You want to find this. Months pass. There's once proof of this place, but now it's gone. There were photographs, but now they are gone. Now it's about the land, the trees, the forest. There are four days left. You are thinking about this, this case. Deep in the woods, the vacation cabin is built mostly of cedar. It's under a ceiling of oak logs. This was an old cabin, once lived in, but now abandoned. Time has slowly passed it by. The family moved away; they had a new house to go to. It's not the same. There's nothing to do here. It's not. It's just a cabin, in the middle of the

Explore, create, explore, destroy. Art has been warped by a sect of amorphous creatures known as the Destroyers of the Art. Mr. Bruesen is trapped inside his perfect painting by them. To trap them, help Mr. Bruesen create the Aspectus, the Perfect Painting, before the time runs out. Find the sect of the amorphous creatures and destroy it. Explore the city after dark and unveil hideous secrets to unravel its mysteries. Using clunky tools, combine up to 4 items to build trickier tools. Find the secret way out, and get back to Mr. Bruesen. ----- STORY -----
Mr. Bruesen's wife is kidnapped by the strange figures, and he is imprisoned in his own painting. He managed to create an analogical copy of his wife in which he can see her smiling. He can't fall asleep, and the same time he doesn't have enough hours to finish the Aspectus. He has to wait for the days to pass in his masterpiece, because if he finishes the painting in one day he will be freed of his imprisonment. He has plenty of time, because his museum doesn't close until next week. His anxiety and insomnia are getting worse day by day, because he has a deadline for completing the Aspectus. The amorphous creatures, known as the Destroyers of the Art, come to the museum. They kidnap the time, and they don't want to let Mr. Bruesen escape. Their objective is to destroy the art, and later the world. -----

PLAYER PROFILE ----- At the start of the game you don't have any items at all. All you have are your own wits and your own tools that you can combine. You have to leave the museum and find some new parts in the real world.
